5. COMMENTS AND SUGGESTIONS

TİHV (Coşkun Üsterci):

The most important development in December on freedom of expression, meeting and organisation was a law that passed the Grand National Assembly of Turkey, entitled, "the Law on the Prevention of the Financing of Spreading Mass Destruction Weapons."

This 44-article law makes amendments in 6 laws and brings restrictions against many basic rights like freedom of expression and organisation. It was suddenly brought on the Parliament's agenda on December 19, passed the commission and quickly passed the Parliament after sessions that lasted all night. The law was enacted on December 27, 2020 by the GNAT General Assembly and was published in the Official Gazette on December 31, 2020.

The law's purpose is indicated to be regulating the principles and bases on the application of sanctions issued by the United Nations (UN) Security Council on the prevention of financing of mass destruction weapons. However, there are only six articles in the law that are related to this purpose. All remaining articles are regulations making changes in the Law of Aid Collecting and Associations that are not directly related to the purpose of the law. With the related regulations, aid collecting of associations and foundations, freedom of organisation, thus freedom of expression are restricted seriously and associations are being put under the political tutelage of the Ministry of the Interior.

According to the regulations in the law, association executives facing investigations or prosecutions due to acts considered terror crimes within the Anti-Terror Law No. 3713 besides international conventions will be able to be instantly dismissed and the Interior Ministry may seize administration of the association. Investigations are opened against more than 300,000 people per year in Turkey, solely due to illegal organisation membership. When the investigations and lawsuits filed recently against thousands of civil rights activists, journalists, politicians and professional union members, especially association executives working on human rights are considered, it is obvious that this law will target all oppositional associations. In short, association activities will be able to be easily prevented due to an investigation/prosecution that will last for years. Furthermore, the President himself will be able to decide whether it is necessary for the assets of associations or foundations to be frozen. With a Presidential decree, the decision will be applied without delay, as soon as it is published on the Official Gazette. The prevention of association activities like this without being bound to any judicial inspection means that all assurances regulated in the Constitution and international conventions are destroyed entirely in terms of freedom of organisation and proprietary rights.

Thanks to the regulations, associations may be able to be inspected at all times by inspectors assigned by the committee established by the Ministry of the Interior and the Ministry of Finance and Treasury, besides public officers authorized to inspect by the Interior Minister when necessary. However, the law does not bring any concrete standards for the qualities of inspectors. The scope of the inspection is vague as well. Such inspections made following complaints will thus be rendered continuous. In short, the close future will be a worrisome process in terms of the freedom of organisation, expression and meeting.

Another interesting incident in December is an investigation against People's Democratic Party (HDP) Diyarbakır MP Semra Güzel and Van MP Tayip Temel with the allegation of "aiding and abetting the criminal." The reason for the investigation is the fact that Leyla Güven, who had a sentence of imprisonment and an arrest warrant against her, was detained as she was at the house of her friend Semra Güzel. It is truly tragicomic.

Another incident that is of equal importance is the announcement of Ankara Chief Public Prosecutor's Office that it started an investigation against those making social media posts on the applications of naked search applied at detainment centers and prisons, which were heavily debated in the public scene recently. It is really a pity that expressing a violation that is of the quality of torture and mistreatment is considered terrorist organisation propaganda.

Lastly, there is the matter of Van Governorate banning all demonstrations and open air meetings across the province, as happened every month. As it will be remembered, all protests and demonstrations are being banned in Van without a break since November 21, 2016. These bans almost mean that there is a continuous State of Emergency and with the Governorate decision in Van, the ban was extended to be 1489 days in total. I would like to underline once again that 1 million 300 thousand citizens residing in Van are not able to use their freedoms of meeting and demonstration guaranteed by the Constitution.

ANKARA (Osman İşçi):

Violations in this period are seen to be intensified around access bans, prosecutions and the taking off of immunities. We observe that there were many claims against Parliament members, especially against oppositional Parliament members, as a result of the reflections of the shrinking social sphere on the Grand National Assembly of Turkey. On the other hand, we observe that the applications of prosecution and access bans have increased in this period. It would be beneficial for human rights organisations and advocates conducting activities of documentation and advocacy specific to these fields.

IZMIR (Ahmet Çiçek):

1. House raids made early in the morning are violating children's rights. Children with Kurdish names are being humiliated, denigrated.
2. Those tested Covid-19 positive are being detained and kept in the same place as others despite informing officials about their state.
3. The prisoners' claims for newspapers and books are banned, their letters are prevented from being sent and are lost, therefore continue as serious rights violations.
4. Another violation is the attacks and attempts of silencing of those expressing the issue of naked search.
