Freedom of Expression Weekly Newsletter (Issue 8/24, February 23, 2024)

What happened last week?

- The reasoned decision of the Constitutional Court in the case filed for the annulment of the law on "publicly disseminating misleading information" defined in Article 217, paragraph A of the Turkish Penal Code, known in the public as the "censorship law", which was rejected, has been announced. In the decision, which was not attended by the president and four members of the Constitutional Court, it was stated in summary that "it is understood that it has a legitimate purpose to protect and ensure public order and security".
- Lawyer Feyza Altun was detained in a police operation at her home due to her social media posts containing "anti-Sharia" and "slang expressions". The lawyer was referred to the court for arrest on the charge of "publicly denigrating religious values embraced by a section of the public" and was released on "judicial control".
- In the case of the 1993 Vartinis (Altınova) massacre in Muş, in which 9 members of the same family were burned to death, the court announced the reasoning behind the statute of limitations. The court claimed that there was insufficient evidence that would make it possible to consider the massacre as a "crime against humanity".
- Contemporary Lawyers Association Antalya Branch executive lawyer Şüheda Ronahi Çiftçi was arrested for her professional activities.
- Search and rescue efforts for 9 workers trapped under a pile of toxic waste in the Erzincan İliç gold mine have been suspended due to "risk of landslides".

Journalist Tolga Şardan to face 5 years in prison

The investigation against T24 columnist Tolga Şardan, who was detained for five days due to his article on alleged corruption and bribery in the Turkish judicial system, has been completed. The Istanbul Chief Public Prosecutor's Office sent the indictment to the Istanbul 2nd Criminal Court of First Instance, demanding up to five years in prison for "publicly disseminating misleading information" and "denigrating the judicial organs of the state".

Journalists under house arrest and banned from leaving the country

Detained on February 13th Cihan Başakçioğlu, Gazete Duvar reporter Cihan Başakçioğlu, Mezopotamya Agency (MA) reporters Semra Turan, Delal Akyüz and Tolga Güney, JINNEWS reporter Melike Aydın and DEM Party press worker Fatma Funda Akbulut, who were detained from their homes in İzmir on February 13th, were released from the Criminal Court of Peace with "judicial control and house arrest" conditions. Criminal Judgship of Peace issued a signature requirement and a ban on leaving the country for Cihan Başakçioğlu and Semra Turan, while Tolga Güney, Melike Aydın, Delal Akyüz and Funda Akbulut were released on house arrest and a ban on leaving the country.

Another ban on King and Travis from Istanbul

İstanbul Şişli District Governorate banned the play "Qral û Travis" staged by Şano Ar Theater one hour before its staging. The play was also banned by the Patnos (Ağrı) District Governorate one day before its staging.

The play "Qral û Travis" (The King and Travis), translated into Kurdish and staged by Batman-based Şano Ar Theater, is about Travis Pine, an unemployed and grumpy man living in America in the 1950s, who writes letters to the American president, whom he sees as responsible for the crises and corruption in the country, and the events that follow.

Anti-mining environmental activist banned from entering his village

Sedat Cezayirlioğlu, an activist known for his struggle against the gold mine in İliç, Erzincan, who was detained last week for "publicly disseminating misleading information", has been banned from entering within 3 km of the mine site, including his village.

Citizen detained for demanding Kurdish service at airports

Memduh Çalışan, a citizen who criticized the lack of "Kurdish" service at Istanbul Airport with a video he shot after his non-Turkish speaking mother's departure was delayed, was detained.

Religious Affairs staff Yusuf Kılıç exiled

Yusuf Kılıç, the imam who refused to carry his congregation to President Erdoğan's rally in Izmir in the run-up to the general elections against the instructions of the AKP Buca District Chairman, announced that he was exiled from his duty station in Izmir after an investigation and threats against him.

Journalist Pelin Özkaptan appeared before the judge

The first hearing of the lawsuit filed against journalist Pelin Özkaptan due to "making propaganda for a terrorist organization" through two posts she made on her Twitter (X) account on June 27, 2019 and June 27, 2022 was held at Istanbul 13th Assize Court. The trial of the case against the journalist for her posts about Eylem Ataş, who lost her life in the fight against ISIS, will continue on

Ankara Queerfest banned

Ankara Governor's Office announced that "for the protection of public order, public health and morals, and the rights and freedoms of others" The 12th Pink Life Queerfest, scheduled to be held between February 23-25, has notified the venues that it has banned all events to be held within the scope of the 12th Pink Life Queerfest.
